

Capstone Experience in the Master of Buddhist Studies

Capstone – Definition

What does “capstone” mean? A capstone is the final stone, laid on the top of a structure, to strengthen and signify its completion.

What is Capstone Experience in the Master of Buddhist Studies (MBS) programme?

“Capstone Experience” is the final “stone” laid on the MBS programme. It strengthens what we have learned and symbolizes the completion of the Master programme.

Purpose of the Capstone Experience:

- To integrate what students have learned in the curriculum.
- To develop students’ analytical and critical skills.
- To enable students to conduct further research in Buddhist studies.

The Capstone Experience is mandatory for the completion of the MBS programme.

How can the Capstone Experience be fulfilled?

There are two options for completing the Capstone Experience:

	Credit
(i) writing a dissertation ; or	12
(ii) taking ONE extra elective course plus writing a portfolio .	Credit for elective course: 6 Credit for portfolio: 6

Option (i) - Dissertation

The word limit of the dissertation is 10,000 to 15,000 words. This includes the footnotes/endnotes but not the bibliography.

The dissertation should focus on a selected topic and title, which has to be approved by the supervisor and the Faculty.

Each student will be assigned a Supervisor. Guidance and supervision will be provided by means of face-to-face meetings and email communication.

Assessment: 100% coursework

Option (ii) - Extra Elective Course with Portfolio

Students are required to fulfil all the coursework requirements (coursework and/or examination) of the chosen elective course, and to write a “portfolio” with a word limit of 10,000 to 12,000 words, including footnotes/endnotes but not the bibliography.

The portfolio can be composed by revising, integrating and consolidating three or four individual essays of 2,500 to 3,000 words from a total of two to four different courses that a student has taken in the MBS curriculum.

A mission statement of about 1,000 words should be provided in the portfolio to substantiate how/why these essays are included for understanding the specific theme of the portfolio.

Assessment of the portfolio: 100% coursework

Assessment of the elective course: 40-100% coursework and 0-60% examination

Submission Timeline

For Full-time Students of 2023-24 & Part-time Year 2 (Final Year) Students of 2022-23:

Sep to mid-Nov, 2023	To choose either (i) Dissertation or (ii) Extra elective course plus Portfolio. To decide the topic/title of the dissertation/portfolio (by consulting the course teachers and the Capstone Experience Coordinator).
15 Nov, 2023	To submit the “Form for Submission of Proposal”, indicating the choice of dissertation/portfolio, the proposed title, and the proposal.
18 Dec, 2023	Students will be informed of the result of their choices on dissertation/portfolio. To change their choices if being rejected.

Jan to July, 2024	To work on the dissertation or portfolio under supervision of the assigned supervisor.
31 July, 2024	To submit the dissertation or portfolio.*

 The same principles apply to part-time students of 2023-24 who will finish their study in the second year of the curriculum (i.e. in 2024-25). Students are required to submit the “Form for Submission of Proposal” on or before 15 November, 2024, and the deadline for submission of their dissertations or portfolios is 31 July, 2025.

* If a student cannot submit his/her dissertation or portfolio by the deadline, he/she may not graduate at the end of 2024.

Proposed Title and Proposal

Students can consult the Capstone Experience Coordinator regarding the topic/title and proposal of the dissertation/portfolio. After a supervisor is assigned, students can consult their supervisor as well.

In the “Form for Submission of Proposal”:

- if a student chooses to write a dissertation, a proposal of 1,000 words should be submitted.

OR

- if a student chooses to compose a portfolio, a proposal of 300 to 500 words should be submitted.

Tutorials will be arranged to assist the students on the Capstone Experience. Dates of the tutorials will be announced before early September, 2023.
