Capstone Experience in the Master of Buddhist Studies

Capstone – Definition

What does “capstone” mean? A capstone is the final stone, laid on the top of a structure, to strengthen and signify its completion.

What is Capstone Experience in the Master of Buddhist Studies (MBS) programme?

“Capstone Experience” is the final “stone” laid on the MBS programme. It strengthens what we have learned and symbolizes the completion of the Master programme.

Purpose of the Capstone Experience:

- To integrate what students have learned in the curriculum.
- To develop students’ analytical and critical skills.
- To enable students to conduct further research in Buddhist studies.

The Capstone Experience is mandatory for the completion of the MBS programme.

How can the Capstone Experience be fulfilled?

There are two options for completing the Capstone Experience:

(A) Dissertation	(B) Portfolio
2 compulsory foundation courses (9 credits each)
5 elective courses (total 30 credits)	6 elective courses (total 36 credits)
BSTC8999 Capstone Experience: Dissertation (12 credits)	BSTC8997 Capstone Experience: Portfolio (6 credits)

Option A – Dissertation (12 credits)

Students are required to select 5 elective courses, and to write a “dissertation” with a word limit of 10,000 to 15,000 words. This includes the footnotes/endnotes but not the bibliography.

The dissertation should focus on a selected topic and title. Students who are planning to write a dissertation are required to submit their proposal to a potential supervisor* by November 15, 2026. The supervisor will review the proposal and confirm those students whom they are willing to supervise by providing their written approval by December 31, 2026. Students may only proceed with enrollment in the dissertation course (BSTC8999) after receiving the supervisor’s written approval.

Those who fail to secure a dissertation supervisor by December 31, 2026 should choose to do BSTC8997 Capstone Experience: Portfolio and take 6 elective courses.

Please prepare the following when approaching your potential dissertation supervisors:

1. A research proposal for the dissertation (1,000-1,500 words)
2. Brief literature review section
3. Related bibliography

Guidance and supervision will be provided by means of face-to-face meetings and email communication.

 List of teachers who can provide supervision for dissertation:

1. Prof. Georgios T. Halkias (halkias@hku.hk)
2. Prof. Klaus-Dieter Mathes (kdmathes@hku.hk)
3. Prof. Catherine Hardie (cehardie@hku.hk)
4. Prof. Ma Zhouyang (mzy2026@hku.hk)
5. Dr. Guang Xing (guangxin@hku.hk)
6. Dr. G.A. Somaratne (soma@hku.hk)
7. Dr. Chung-hui Tsui (chunghui@hku.hk)

Option B – Portfolio (6 credits)

Students are required to select 6 elective courses, and to prepare a “portfolio” which includes an essay of 5,000 to 7,000 words and a 5-minutes video-recorded presentation. This includes footnotes/endnotes but not the bibliography.

Supervisors of the Portfolio will be assigned to students based on the area of interest indicated on the Capstone Experience application form.
